world war two was the most devastating conflict in recorded human history it was both global in extent and total in character it has understandably left a long and dark shadow across the decades yet it is three generations since hostilities formally ended in 1945 and the conflict is now a lived memory for only a few and this growing distance in time has allowed historians to think differently about how to describe it how to explain its course and what subjects to focus on when considering the wartime experience for instance as world war two recedes ever further into the past even a question as apparently basic as when it began and ended becomes less certain was it 1939 when the war in europe began or the summer of 1941 with the beginning of hitler s war against the soviet union or did it become truly global only when the japanese brought the usa into the war at the end of 1941 and what of the long conflict in east asia beginning with the japanese aggression in china in the early 1930s and only ending with the triumph of the chinese communists in 1949 in the oxford illustrated history of world war two a team of leading historians re assesses the conflict for a new generation exploring the course of the war not just in terms of the allied response but also from the viewpoint of the axis aggressor states under richard overy s expert editorial guidance the contributions take us from the genesis of war through the action in the major theatres of conflict by land sea and air to assessments of fighting power and military and technical innovation the economics of total war the culture and propaganda of war and the experience of war and genocide for both combatants and civilians concluding with an account of the transition from world war to cold war in the late 1940s together they provide a stimulating and thought provoking new interpretation of one of the most terrible and fascinating episodes in world history major international experts offer new interpretations of the key aspects of the origins of the second world war winner of both the national book award for arts and letters and the national book critics circle award for criticism paul fussell's The Great War and Modern Memory was one of the most original and gripping volumes ever written about the first world war frank kermode in the New York Times book review hailed it as an important contribution to our understanding of how we came to make world war i part of our minds and lionel trilling called it simply one of the most deeply moving books i have read in a long time in its panoramic scope and poetic intensity it illuminated a war that changed a generation and revolutionized the way we see the world now in wartime fussell turns to the second world war the conflict he himself fought in to weave a narrative that is both more intensely personal and more wide ranging whereas his former book focused primarily on literary figures on the image of the great war in literature here fussell examines the immediate impact of the war on common soldiers and civilians he describes the psychological and emotional atmosphere of world war ii he analyzes the euphemisms people needed to deal with unacceptable reality the early belief for instance that the war could be won by precision bombing that is by long distance he describes the abnormally intense frustration of desire and some of the means by which desire was satisfied and most important he emphasizes the damage the war did to intellect discrimination honesty individuality complexity ambiguity and wit of course no fussell book would be complete without some serious discussion of the literature of the time he examines for instance how the great privations of wartime when oranges would be raffled off as valued prizes resulted in roccoco prose styles that dwelt longingly on lavish dinners and how the high mindedness of the era and the almost pathological need to accentuate the positive led to the downfall of the acerbic h l mencken and the ascent of e b white he also offers astute commentary on edmund wilson's argument with archibald macleish cyril connolly's Horizon magazine the war poetry of randall jarrell and louis simpson and many other aspects of the wartime literary world fussell conveys the essence of that wartime as no other writer before him for the past fifty years the allied war has been sanitized and romanticized almost beyond recognition by the sentimental the loony patriotic the ignorant and the bloodthirsty americans he says have never understood what the second world war was really like in this stunning volume he offers such an understanding historical personal and technical aspects of the second world war are explored in this six book series each book examines a different facet of the war from the military machines and battles to the leaders who brought their people through the terrible times details of military weaponry battle plans and personalities will bring this conflict alive for readers in 1939 hitler went to war not just with great britain he also went to war with the whole of the british empire the greatest empire that there had ever been in the years since 1945 that empire has disappeared and the crucial fact that the british empire fought together as a whole during the war has been forgotten all the parts of the empire joined the struggle and were involved in it from the beginning undergoing huge changes and sometimes suffering great losses as a result the war in the desert the defence of malta and the malayan campaign and the contribution of the empire as a whole in terms of supplies communications and troops all reflect the strategic importance of britain s imperial status men and women not only from australia new zealand and india but from many parts of africa and the middle east all played their part winston churchill saw the war throughout in imperial terms the british empire and the second world war emphasises a central fact about the second world war that is often forgotten
